THE Mexico LEDGER has a warm friend in this city who is anxious to have the capital removed, but h wants it to remain on wheels. He wants the matter left in such a way that it can be moved any time overnight when anybody desires a change. In this way everybody car e pleased, even if the capital has to be removed between meals.

farmers state they never knew of such a condition of affairs before. As a rule, nearly all the corn raised in eastern Kansas is husked and gathered in November and December, generally before the Christmas holidays, but this year at least half is still in stalk or in shock in the fields.

There was a scurcity of farm laborers is sat fall so that a great deal of the corn could not be cut and placed in shock, and it was left standing. Since then no workmen could be employed to husk corn, although the winter has been open and pleasant. In many instances men who employed from three to five men all winter long have not been able to get more than two, who are kept busy husking enough corn to feed to cattle and hogs from day to day. Young men usually glad to work in the fields are in the cities or with contractors, and they are getting from 81.00 to $1.75 per day for eight hours' work.

With many fields of corn now gathered in the spring will not be as large as usual. From now on farmers will have to devote most of their time to getting fields ready for oats and
